AGAINST COLVIN'S PLAN HERE, TOO

Madison Teachers Vote Almost Solidly Against Amendments After McDougle Speaks

The public school teachers of Madison county at their meeting at the court house Saturday morning decided to vote against the amendments to the proposed school constitutional amendments. At the close of an address by Dr. E. C. McDougle, a vote showed four for the amendments and exactly 50 against them. And one of the four who voted in favor of the amendments was Prof. Milton Elliott, of Frankfort, state representative of Ginn & Co., publishers of school books.

In his address, Dr. McDougle pointed out the gravity of making any change in the state's constitution—a document carefully planned and tested out through more than a century and a quarter. He asserted that changes should be made only when serious evils were evident in the operation of the governmental law. He also argued that the burden of proof and weight of argument rests with those who favor the changes.

Dr. McDougle warned teachers against throwing many serious school questions into the hands of the next legislature, which is certain to feel the reaction against high taxes, and reflect their reactionary spirit in laws that may lower the salaries of the public school teachers.

Discussing briefly the merits of the first amendment which proposes to take the election of the State Superintendent away from the people and put it into the hands of the governor for appointment, or pass it over to a commission not yet provided for, the speaker cited the change in recent years in the selection of United States Senators and argued that it would be an undemocratic move to pass such selection back to a small group. At present political parties nominate the people at large have some choice in naming the candidates. He said the people have no assurance that a governor's selection could possibly help matters. It would surely concentrate more power in his hands, and give him the right to name one who would have the handling of the millions of dollars spent upon the school each year. In the hands of an autocratic, partisan governor such power can be exceedingly dangerous, Dr. McDougle said. Governors do not need any more patronage to give them control over the institutions of the state.

Speaking to the second amendment, Dr. McDougle stated that it is the much more dangerous of the two. It proposes to take 10 per cent of all the state school funds out of every rural community, special district, town and city and place it in the hands of the state educational department, or some other agency yet to be determined by the legislature, for distribution other than upon the present per capita basis. He argued that it would make the poor counties poorer and the rich counties richer, if the legislature should decide to distribute the half million dollars, thus reserved, by placing funds only where counties and communities voted extra money to match that granted by the state authority. Such a plan of "stimulation" is based upon the belief that the public is not paying enough taxes and should place a whip in the hands of the state government to compel them to pay more or do with less, he said. That's the doctrine of stimulation.

The doctrine of equalization holds that Madison county people should vote away nearly $4,000 of their present state school fund to be handed over to some mountain county according to the will of some party or parties yet to be provided for by the next legislature. It would take $700 out of Richmond's school fund to hand over to some county, perhaps, one whose rich coal lands are escaping equitable assessment, and let Richmond taxpayers make up an extra fund in their tax budget.

The speaker also pointed out the dangers that would arise, if the state should have officials who were disposed to play favorites with the state's money thus en-

FOUNT RICE GOES TO HIS REWARD

Veteran Farmer and Respected Citizen Passes To His Fathers At Ripe Old Age

News of the death of Mr. Fount Rice, which occurred at his residence Monday morning at 11:20 o'clock, thought not altogether unexpected, has cast a gloom and shadow in the home so recently bereft of a devoted mother and in the entire community where the greater part of his life was spent. He was one of the most highly respected citizens in the county, a splendid neighbor, and a loyal friend. He was a member of the Baptist church at Kingston and for many years a most active worker and devoted to its teachings.

Surviving him are ten children Mrs. Hugh Mason, of Prairie Miss, Misses Eddie and Jessie Rice, Atlanta, Ga., Edna, Alma, and Jane Rice of this city. Dr. Charles D. Rice, of Ames, Iowa Fount Rice, of Columbia, Tenn. and Thomas F. Rice, of Roswell, New Mexico.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, burial in the Richmond cemetery.

Owen Walker In Bad Again

Owen Walker, well known local negro, is to appear in Police Court Monday night and answer for selling liquor to Jonah Runyon and having a quantity among his household possessions. He was caught by police at an early hour Saturday morning while he was selling whisky to Runyon. Then the police went to his home where they searched, finding a half gallon of moonshine, they say. This is the third time Walker has been charged with selling liquor recently and the second time since the legislature changed the law, making the second offense a felony, subject to a penitentiary term if convicted.

Mayor George Smith of Louisville has banned the organization of a Ku Klux Klan.

trusted to them. Man naturally covets power and the present proposed amendments are both designed to take privilege from the people at large and concentrate power into the hands of a few in the city of Frankfort. He said our liberties have been too costly, too long in process of evolution, for us willingly to surrender them to those who are seeking to rob us of them.

Following Dr. McDougle, after a vote had been called for an amendment by Supt. B. F. Edwards, as noted, Ex-Supt. John Noland was introduced. Passing by the first amendment upon which he said he had not fully made up his mind, Mr. Noland said he stands opposed strongly to the second. He does not believe it was to trust any legislature with the disposition of nearly half a million dollars of school money. Kentucky is today a poor state in school money just because legislatures prior to 1849 had a chance each session to handle school lands and school funds, and they usually handled them for anything else than for the good of the schools. Much money was actually squandered and valuable lands were diverted to other uses.

Mr. Noland said in the course of his remarks:

"I have the utmost confidence in Dr. McDougle's judgment on educational matters. I consider him one of the ablest, most efficient and most sincere leaders of educational thought in Kentucky today. For a number of years he has stood at the forefront of every right movement for improvement of the public school system in the state. I consider him the most scholarly and the ablest member of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School faculty has ever had in all the years of its history. He has stood on the very watchtower of educational progress and has not only pointed the way, but has led the forces to better things."

Both speakers were roundly applauded and the large audience present numbered in it several prominent citizens who are not teachers.

(By Associated Press)

FEUD TROUBLE IS FEARED IN ROCKCASTLE

When Trial of John Bailey, Jr., For Killing Bev White Is Called At Mt. Vernon Today

(By Associated Press)
Mt. Vernon, Ky., Aug. 23—With 25 national guardsmen from London and 20 special deputy sheriffs on guard, the Rockcastle county courthouse today presented a martial appearance as the case of John Bailey, Jr., slayer of Beverly White was called for trial. Approximately a hundred members of the Bailey-Lee clan and the Whites, opposing factions in the most bitter mountain feud that has torn eastern Kentucky in recent years present for the opening of the trial.

Mt. Vernon, Ky., Aug. 22—Nearly one hundred members of the rival factions of the Bailey-Lee clansmen and the Whites are under arms here in anticipation of the beginning Monday of the trial of John Bailey, Jr., slayer of Beverly White.

On the courthouse lawn a detachment of the London cavalry guard, twenty-four strong and commanded by Major James L. Dillon, is quartered, and twenty special deputies sworn in Saturday also are on duty.

There were no outbreaks Saturday but every train brought reinforcements for the opposing forces and other feudists are expected. John Bailey, Jr., who is out on bond, his father and two brothers, are the leaders of the Bailey-Lee faction, while John G. White, brother of the slain man, and three of his sons are among those in the other camp.

Following the arrival of the troops Major Dillon went to the headquarters of the clansmen and personally delivered to the leaders orders against carrying weapons, warning them that any armed persons found upon the street would be arrested and taken into court.

John Bailey was arrested the night of April 9, voluntarily surrendering at Barbourville to sheriff Ross P. Black. Bailey had been at large for two days following the killing on April 7 at Heidrick's station, one mile from Barbourville, of Beverly D. White, of Versailles.

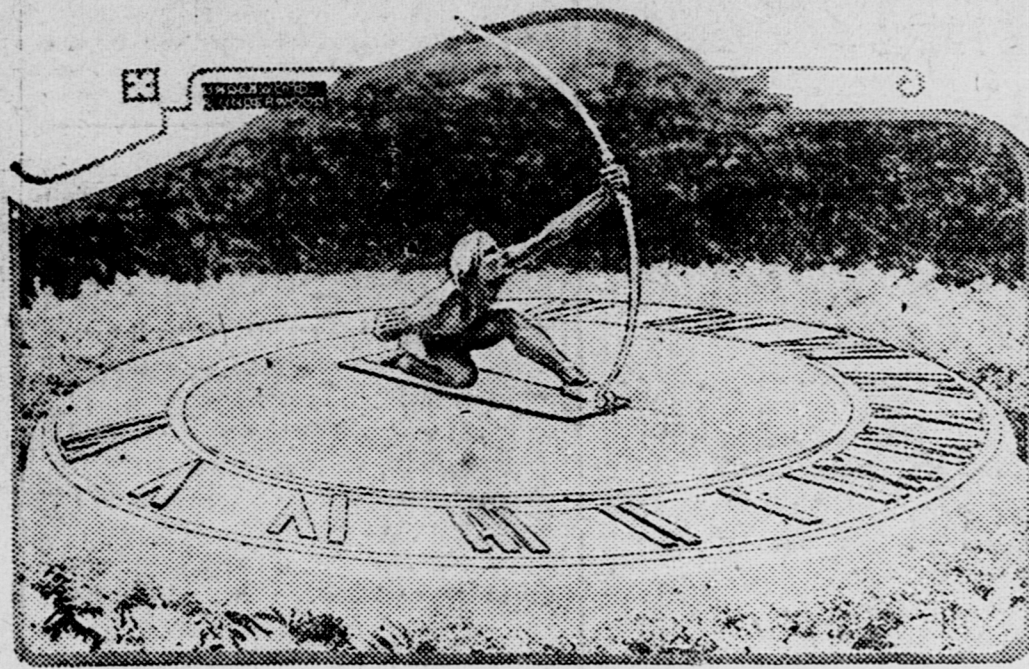

White was killed, according to early versions of the trouble, as he stepped into a restaurant to obtain a valise he had left there while he proceeded into Clay county to look after some timber and mining lands he owned. White had moved out of Knox county many years before to avoid bringing up his children in the atmosphere of the mountain feuds, one of which then was raging between his family and the Bailey family. He had lived at Versailles during that period, making periodical trips into Knox and Clay counties to look after his properties.

The trip that ended in his death started from Rochester, Minn., where White had gone for an operation. Instead of going home he went to Clay county to look after his interests and was on his way home when slain.

White's body, according to report from Barbourville lay where it fell for some time after the shooting. Bailey, admittedly the slayer, remained at Heidrick's station with his father and adherents of the family, until sheriff Black arrived. The Baileys refused to allow John to be taken to the Knox county jail and the sheriff returned to Barbourville to get permission to take him to Bell county. While the sheriff was gone, the Baileys left the scene, seized a motor car used by a railroad section gang and fled.

On the night of April 8 Bailey under guard of his father, William Bailey, his brother, James Bailey and Deputy Sheriff Perry, an adherent of the family. He was taken to the Harlan county jail. In Harlan county Bailey was denied bail and later was removed to Mt. Vernon. Efforts to get bail were renewed and the police judge of Mt. Vernon was going to hear the petition when the prosecuting appealed to the State Court of Appeals for a writ forbidding the hearing. A temporary writ was granted and Bailey was removed to the county jail at

MRS. CHAS. P. WEAVER KILLED AT SOMERSET

Many here who knew her in woman's club, Red Cross and other public activities, regretted to learn of the death of Mrs. Anna Sewell Weaver, of Louisville who succumbed on a train in McCleary county Sunday afternoon from injuries received a few minutes previous when her auto was hit by a train. The driver of her machine, Charles Strunk, also was seriously injured and may die. Mrs. Weaver was 58 years old and was one of the best known women in public life in the state. She was the wife of former Mayor Charles P. Weaver, of Louisville and is survived by her husband, one son, Major William G. Weaver, of Camp Pike; Mrs. Jessie Weaver Brown, of Grand Forks, N. D., and Mrs. L. D. and Mrs. L. D. Kuhn, of Louisville.

Mrs. Weaver was on a business trip. The tragedy was due to the failure of the chauffeur to note the arrival of northbound Queen and Crescent train No. 2 and that he pulled out from his parking place at the rear of the station and had gone less than 50 feet when the fatal crash occurred. When it was realized that Mrs. Weaver was seriously hurt Dr. W. R. Cundiff of Stearns, was summoned and boarded the train at that point. Mrs. Weaver, however, was past medical aid and died in a few minutes. Mrs. Weaver's right leg was broken, as was her left arm. Deep cuts and bruises were sustained about the head and face. She may have sustained internal injuries. Physicians, however, said it was their belief that death probably resulted from shock.

Louisville. He remained there until the county judge returned to Mt. Vernon and on hearing granted bail. Up to the time of the starting of the trial Bailey was free on bond.

PAVED HIGHWAY IS NOW ASSURED

Rights-of-Way To Be Condemned Where Owners Refuse To Help Along Improvement

With one or two exceptions, all property owners along the seven miles of the Lexington pike, intended to be paved with federal, state and county funds, have signed up deeds for the require right-of-way, fence removal, etc., and the highway is now assured.

The State Highway Commission will open bids for the work at Frankfort Tuesday. Contractors have been here for the past week or so, looking into specifications, going over the roads and making up their plans and bids.

At a called meeting of the Fiscal Court here Saturday afternoon, together with a number of the property owners along the route the whole thing was thrashed out, and the Court voted to bring suit to condemn the rights-of-way where the property owner did not willingly deed it for the highway.

It is understood that all of the property owners are willing to give the right-of-way, but several objected to bearing the expense of rebuilding the fences required.

County Judge W. K. Price explained the situation carefully and logically. Several of the members of the Fiscal Court, taking cognizance of the refusal of several of the large property owners to pay for the fence moving, were in favor of passing the whole matter up. They argued that they did not believe in forcing a good highway upon any property owners who did not want it.

Judge Price, however, took the big and broad view of the matter, that it was for the good of all Madison county; it was a step forward; that it would be a shame—almost a crime for Madison to refuse to accept some $200,000 of federal and state money, given freely, to build her a good highway, simply because of the selfish attitude that it seemed some property owners along the highway were taking. He urged that the county go forward with this big work and pointed out there was ample legal authority to condemn the additional right-of-way needed and that the property owners would then have to build their fences if they wanted fences along the road to enclose their premises.

After fully considering this phase of the matter, the court voted to institute condemnation proceedings if necessary, and to go ahead with the highway.

Discussion after the meeting indicated that practically all of the property owners would sign up, and that few, if any, condemnation suits would be necessary. All necessary papers in the case will now be certified to the State Highway Commission at Frankfort and the opening of bids and letting of contract is eagerly awaited.

STORED LIQUOR IN BACHELOR'S HOME

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 22—If the statement of Charles Stewart, reputable grower and bachelor of considerable wealth, stands the test of examination by prohibition officers, whisky runners perpetrated an audacious feat in concealing 100 cases of liquor, which left the Stag distillery here Thursday afternoon, ostensibly for Paducah, and were found Friday night in Mr. Stewart's house, six miles from Frankfort in the opposite direction from Paducah.

Mr. Stewart leases the fish heirs' farm and lives in a rambling old stone and frame house, concealed from view from the highway by a hill. He "batches," as he expressed it and occupies a small portion of the house. He is away from home much of the time and the solitary house is without a keeper at such times.

"Thursday night about 7 o'clock I went to Harmony church," said Mr. Stewart, "and returned about 11. I happened to observe that a chain on the door of the room in the stone house was fastened up with a bent nail. It struck me that some one had been there and I opened the door and found the whisky. I talked with a neighbor about it next day and he advised that I keep still."

"It will only get you notoriety and trouble," he said. "I decided to keep still. My theory was that some friends of mine in Paris had occasion for some reason to store the whisky on the way and no finding me at home just had it put in anyway."

Mr. Stewart declared he saw a truck and knows nothing about the whisky other than that he was away on Friday night and when he returned the whisky had been removed.

625000 BOTTLES SOLD IN NEW YORK

Biggest Thing of Kind Ever Seen
In That State, Says Big Wholesaler

The fact that 625,000 bottles of Tanlac have been sold in the state of New York since its introduction there less than one year ago, is a big business item that will attract unusual attention throughout the entire East, for nothing like it has ever happened before. It breaks all records.

Mr. George M. Evans, manager of the Gibson-Snow Company, the well known wholesale druggists, with branches in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, recently announced that the preparation was now selling in their trade territory alone at the phenomenal rate of approximately 500,000 bottles a year.

"If the present rate continues," said Mr. Barnes, "this state alone will probably require considerably over 750,000 bottles a year. This is a tremendous figure, but I am really conservative in making this statement."

Tanlac is sold in Richmond by Stockton and Son, and leading druggists.

Swift's Produce Review.

Lower prices now prevailing on poultry are due to heavier movement. Indications are that we will see continued heavy shipments to market with still lower prices as prices on poultry for some time have been out of line with live stock.

Hens are now in the moulting period, which is having some effect on the general quality, and is responsible for the lower dressed markets.

Production of cream is showing some increase, due to pasture conditions, and markets have declined in line with general markets on other commodities.

Eggs production is now light, and the trade generally is turning to the use of storage eggs, as the amount of fresh being marketed is not large enough to care for the consuming demand.

William Kinnaird, of Lancaster, a son of Dr. J. B. Kinnaird, has been appointed a prohibition enforcement agent for western Kentucky.
